

Sydney 13cabs amps up local cabbie support through R U OK? Day

Immediate Release: 12 September 2019

Today in Sydney, NSW, 13cab drivers are gathering alongside Operators, Partner Support teams and colleagues in support of 2019's R U OK? Day. The event comes as 13cabs hosts its largest network of awareness events across Australia to date.

Across several Australian cities and regions, morning tea events will be held to connect the over 40,000 Australian taxi drivers who work hard to provide safe trips, to and fro, to millions of residents and visitors each year.

13cabs General Manager, NSW, John Dugaro, says, "Sydney is one of the world's greatest cities, not only because of its picturesque surrounds and vivacious atmosphere, but also because it boasts a bustling city life and a reliable taxi fleet to match it. Sydney's 13cabs are a critical aspect of what makes Sydney so great and they're always one of the first to check-in and ask how you're going."

"We're forever grateful for them and acutely aware they don't have the easiest job in the world. We need to remember to check in with them too."

13cabs Head of Engagement, Olivia Barry says, "Initiatives like R U OK? Day are terrific call outs of the importance of community, conversation and connection. It's also a great opportunity for us, as a company to check-in with our cab Drivers, our staff and our extended partners, in hope to continue to create a culture of connectedness, acceptance and transparency."

R U OK? Day is a not for profit organisation raising awareness for mental health.

13cabs will be holding a Morning Tea Breakfast at Alexandria, Sydney.
